

this. It really is a stronger case, because, as we have said, here the declaration was consistent with a wrong under the law of the State or of the United States as the facts might turn out. The amendment "merely expanded or amplified what was alleged in support of the cause of action already asserted . . . and was not affected by the intervening lapse of time." Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Renn, 241 U. S. 290, 293. "The facts constituting the tort were the same, whichever law gave them that effect." Seaboard Air Line Ry. v. Koennecke, 239 U. S. 352, 354. See also St. Louis, San Francisco & Texas Ry. Co. v. Smith, 243 U. S. 630. Of course an argument can be made on the other side, but when a defendant has had notice from the beginning that the plaintiff sets up and is trying to enforce a claim against it because of specified conduct, the reasons for the statute of limitations do not exist, and we are of opinion that a liberal rule should be applied.

We shall not discuss at length other points that technically are open but that did not induce the granting of the writ, such as the sufficiency of the evidence that the parties were engaged in interstate commerce, the instruction as to assumption of risk, &c. We see no sufficient reason for disturbing the judgment and it must stand.

Judgment affirmed.

ST. LOUIS COTTON COMPRESS COMPANY v.
STATE OF ARKANSAS.

ERROR TO THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS.

No. 120. Argued November 23, 24, 1922.—Decided December 4, 1922.

1. In determining the constitutionality of a pecuniary exaction made under a state statute in the guise of taxation, this Court is not bound by the characterization of the exaction by the State Supreme Court as an "occupation tax." P. 348.

2. A state law exacting of persons insuring their property situate in the State a so-called tax of 5% of the amounts paid by them as premiums to insurers not authorized to do business in the State, is void as applied to insurance contracted and paid for outside the State by a foreign corporation doing local business. P. 348. Alleyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578.
147 Ark. 406, reversed.

ERROR to a judgment of the Supreme Court of Arkansas in an action brought by the State to recover 5% of amounts paid by the Compress Company to fire insurance companies, not authorized to do business in the State, for insuring its property in Arkansas.

Mr. George B. Rose, with whom Mr. Wendell P. Barker, Mr. W. E. Hemingway, Mr. D. H. Cantrell and Mr. J. F. Loughborough were on the brief, for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Wm. T. Hammock and Mr. F. G. Lindsey, with whom Mr. J. S. Utley, Attorney General of the State of Arkansas, and Mr. Elbert Godwin were on the brief, for defendant in error.

MR. JUSTICE HOLMES delivered the opinion of the Court.

This is a suit by the State of Arkansas against a corporation of Missouri authorized to do business in Arkansas. It is brought to recover five per cent. on the gross premiums paid by the defendant, the plaintiff in error, for insurance upon its property in Arkansas, to companies not authorized to do business in the State. A statute of the State purports to impose a liability for this amount as a tax. Crawford & Moses, Digest, (1921) § 9967. The answer alleged that the policies were contracted for, delivered and paid for in St. Louis, Missouri, the domicil of the corporation, because the rates were less than those charged by companies authorized to do business in Arkansas. It also alleged that long before the taxing act was passed the defendant had made large investments in Arkansas in real and personal property essential to the conduct of its business, which it had held and operated ever since. The plaintiff demurred. The lower Court overruled the demurrer, but the Supreme Court sustained it, holding that the statute denied to the defendant no rights guaranteed to it by the Fourteenth Amendment. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff and the case was brought by writ of error to this Court.

The Supreme Court justified the imposition as an occupation tax—that is, as we understand it, a tax upon the occupation of the defendant. But this Court although bound by the construction that the Supreme Court may put upon the statute is not bound by the characterization of it so far as that characterization may bear upon the question of its constitutional effect. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Arkansas, 235 U. S. 350, 362. The short question is whether this so-called tax is saved because of the name given to it by the statute when it has been decided in Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, that the imposition of a round sum, called a fine, for doing the same thing, called an offence, is invalid under the Fourteenth Amendment. It is argued that there is a distinction because the Louisiana statute prohibits (by implication) what this statute permits. But that distinction, apart from some relatively insignificant collateral consequences, is merely in the amount of the detriment imposed upon doing the act. The name given by the State to the imposition is not conclusive. Child Labor Tax Case, 259 U. S. 20. Lipke v. Lederer, 259 U. S. 557. In Louisiana the detriment was $1000. Here it is five per cent. upon the premiums—which is three per cent. more than is charged for insuring in authorized companies. Each is a prohibition to the extent of the payment required. The Arkansas tax manifests no less plainly than the Louisiana fine a purpose to discourage insuring in companies that do not pay tribute to the State. This case is stronger than that of Allgeyer in that here no act was done within the State, whereas there a letter constituting a step in the contract was posted within the jurisdiction. It is true that the State may regulate the activities of foreign corporations within the State but it cannot regulate or interfere with what they do outside. The other limit upon the State's power due to its having permitted the plaintiff in error to establish itself as alleged, need not be considered here. Southern Ry. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 414; Cheney Brothers Co. v. Massachusetts, 246 U. S. 147, 157; Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. v. Wisconsin, 247 U. S. 132, 140.

DAVIS, DIRECTOR GENERAL OF RAILROADS,
AND AGENT UNDER SECTION 206 OF TRANSPORTATION ACT OF 1920, v. GREEN, ADMINISTRATRIX OF GREEN.

CERTIORARI TO THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI.

No. 132. Argued November 28, 1922.—Decided December 4, 1922.

1. A railroad company is not liable under the Federal Employers' Liability Act for an injury inflicted by the wanton, wilful act of an employee, out of the course of his employment. P. 351.
 2. Where the case was tried upon the warranted assumption that the parties were engaged in interstate commerce at the time of the injury, the defendant cannot be deprived on review of rights under the federal act upon the ground that such employment was not adequately proved. P. 352.
- 125 Miss. 476, reversed.

CERTIORARI to a judgment of the Supreme Court of Mississippi, affirming, with a reduction, a judgment recovered by the present respondent in a consolidated action for the death of her husband.
